

A garden Arch by Mick Mc Cabe

Mick said: "A garden arch I made years back from mainly reclaimed timber from industrial pallets and old roof beams. Just made the plans as I went but going for the old church yard look. Almost everything was salvaged apart from the four corner posts. My mate worked at a printing place and the had a big machine delivered in a huge wood crate so all the roof planks and beams etc came from that and I had the used slates and ridge tiles. It's weathered in nice too. Photos show various views of woodwork and slated roof then final stained finished arch, there is bird box inside which has never been used but wrens have nested in there lots of times in various ledges and nooks and crannies."
